

Faculty - New England School of Acupuncture

Overview

The NESAs (New England School of Acupuncture) faculty position at MCPHS University in Worcester, MA is a 12-month, full-time faculty position with responsibilities for teaching, scholarship, and service on behalf of the University.

Responsibilities

- Teach in the acupuncture core curriculum, including didactic and clinical courses, and clinical internship
- Teach widely in the Chinese herbal medicine program, including didactic courses and clinical internship
- May serve as clinical preceptor in teaching hospital
- Maintain advanced knowledge in discipline and areas of expertise
- Provide invited talks on Chinese Medicine for students and faculty of other schools and programs in areas of interest and expertise
- Contribute to scholarship of Chinese medicine commensurate with rank, leading to publications in peer reviewed journals
- Incorporate standards of evidence-based medicine and findings from research literature into teaching
- Serve as active member of NESAs faculty committee, with oversight of NESAs academic policies and programs
- Contribute to faculty activities in support of assessment and accreditation, including data collection and reporting
- Serve as a member of at least one University committee
- Attend both NESAs and University events, such as White Coat Ceremony, Commencement, Graduates' Reception
- Provide student advisement, including academic counseling and graduation audits
- Conduct admission interviews and events
- Support interprofessional activities and events
- Work collaboratively with administrators, faculty and staff of other schools and programs
- Commit to student success and satisfaction

Additional responsibilities may be assigned by the Dean.

Rank is commensurate with education and experience.

Qualifications

Required:

- Master's degree, or equivalent, in acupuncture and Chinese Herbal Medicine
- Doctoral degree preferred
- Active license to practice acupuncture and Chinese Herbal Medicine in Massachusetts, or eligibility to obtain said license
- At least 7 years of clinical experience, preferably 10+ years
- Excellent organizational and communication skills
- Prior teaching experience with demonstrated excellence

Desired:

- Experience with educational and office technology, including a learning management system, word processing, and spreadsheets
- Excellent writing skills

MCPHS offers a competitive salary and excellent benefits that includes a substantial contribution toward the cost of medical and dental insurance, generous time off benefits, and a significant pension plan contribution.

Click here to apply and to find out more about MCPHS University

<https://careers-mcphs.icims.com/jobs/3338/faculty---new-england-school-of-acupuncture/job>